Choosing to share

Dear parents,

Today, Minipally lent us his blocks. Each child got one block. Minipally was happy to see us smile when he offered us a block. He said that he enjoyed sharing with us. At home, too, I can practise giving, during snacks or meals. I can hand out wash cloths or bread rolls, without forgetting my brother or myself.

P.S.: This practice of voluntarily handing out objects that are identical and in sufficient number is the first step in sharing, which involves giving up an object to someone else.
