WORKSHOP 9
Waiting my turn

Dear parents,

Today Minipally the mouse and Tickle Rabbit played on the slide, taking turns. They often have to wait their turn at daycare too. To help himself wait, Minipally says, "I'm waiting, and after it will be my turn. Wait, wait, Minipally. Tickle is going first, and then it will be me." Sometimes it's hard for me to wait, because I don't really know how long it will be or what the time means (minutes, hours, days). I am even more impatient when I have to wait for something that I really want. I need to be encouraged while I'm waiting. When you explain to me when the wait will be over (for example, after a certain action), that helps me wait, especially when you say to me, "Very good, you're waiting. Wait!"

P.S.: Some young children like to repeat "wait" or "...ate" to help themselves wait.