Listening to others

Dear parents,

Today Minipally explained to that to properly understand someone who is talking, we have to look that person in the eyes and listen with our ears. He also said that he liked talking to us because he saw that we looked at him and that we listened when he spoke. I'm lucky because when I talk to you, you look at me with your eyes and you listen to me with your ears. You can draw my attention to this by saying, "I'm finished doing _____. Now I'm coming over to you and looking at you. I'm ready to listen to you." I like it when you congratulate me for being able to listen to you, when it's not my turn to speak.

P.S.: Visual contact is a way of connecting with another person, and the first aspect of listening to be learned.

You can help your child practise turn-taking by playing "telephone".
